Production Tech

Production Tech - Lake City, MN

November 2012 to May 2013

Production Tech- I work on assembly line in the novice area building quality fire places for peoples homes.

Currently after three months I am now a core member of hearth and homes and have surpassed everyone's expectations for being new and i am continuing to become what this company looks for in employees and am continuing to climb to the top. I work in front assembly where I use screw guns, screws, a projection welder and brake press as well as putting the outer shell on the fire place and assembling the fireplace. I also know all the names for each part and what critical role they play and what happens when there's a disturbance and normally how to fix the issue. They love my motivation and my drive to learn more and gain as much knowledge as possible while striving to do the job right and do it in takt time while making sure the quality is there. I am one of the most valued there and they keep saying they will move me up to bigger and better opportunities and I'm still waiting. The temp agency (Aeroteck) said I was the model employee for what that company is looking for and wanted me to be the so called example of how people should be and what they should expect. They want me to be basically the poster child for our line as well as the company. I'm trying to get away from this line due to broken promises by people and I want to advance and have done everything in my power to but still nothing and ask anyone I'm one of the hardest and greatest workers on our line and have proven by actions.
