Employment Type:

Full Time (30 Hours or More)

When I first got there I was a unit assembler. My job was to put the locks on the windows but i quickly learned how to do multiply job on the line. I worked on the line for 2 years. I wanted something new so i switched to a forklift driver in shipping. My job description was to go get loads of windows in a very tight work area and take them to that correct area so they could be loaded and sent out to the customer. i did that job for about 7 or 8 months then they put me in the packaging department where my job description was to wrap single units in cardboard and put a label on them so they could be shipped out to customer on time. i did that job until I got laid off on January 27, 2014. I am a hard working indavidual that is willing to do what ever it takes to become a good employee and a good role model for other workers. I come to work on time and im very dependable.
