For the last year i have been working my way towards getting into a forklift warehouse position, or driving. I have a car, a driver's license, and currently am employed as an order puller for a lumber company. The job has me driving so much that it's become something I'd like to do more, for a company that might be able to offer me more

Authorized to work in the US for any employer

Additional Information

---

I have been working since my last job, going assignment after another with temp agencies. I recently invested a fair amount of money into safety equipment. I'd like to put my investments into a more permanent assignment, but at these times I'm looking to work PERIOD.
