Tattooer

The Vault tattoo & body piercing co - River Falls, WI

August 2015 to July 2017

My work day started every day at 10am. I would begin by looking at the schedule book and reviewing the days appointments and then checking the shops email, sending any follow up emails to previous clients 1month after they received tattoos. I would then check my drawings for the days scheduled tattoos to make sure they were ready for clients before I opened the shop at 11am followed by a brief call or text message to the owner to let him know we were open for the business. Before my clients arrived I would sanitize and prep my aseptic work area then go make a stencil to be applied to their skin as a guideline before finally giving them their tattoo. At the end of the day (9pm) I would lock the door, turn the open sign off. I would then count the cash, checks, and credit/debit card receipts to get a total gross income for the shop that day and write it down. I separated the money I generated (tattoo clients) from shop sales (jewelry and merchandise) and write those totals down. The total from my clients was then divided in half and written down. 50% went to the owner as a fee for working in his shop and the other half was mine to keep. I then totaled the shop income and took a picture of the daily ledger to send to the owner before I dropped his money and the ledger in the safe. Next I mopped the floor and wiped down all the counters, table tops and handles then took a look at the schedule book to see what was scheduled for the next day. After that I checked my inventory, shut all the lights off, locked the door and went home. ( ordering supplies and restocking inventory was my own responsibility and done on my personal time)
